

At the Post Office

After a visit to the post office, the teacher asks children to draw a picture of a post office. The teacher is also interested in what new vocabulary the children picked up from the visit. During circle time she says to the children, "Tell me about your picture." The teacher writes what the children say on mailing labels along with their initials so she can place the words on the pictures after circle time. Here are some of their responses:

- Here's the mail carrier delivering the mail.
- This is the post office box.
- Esta es la carta [This is the letter].
- These are all the mail.
- This is the post office.
- It's a mail lady.
- This is where you put the mail in a bag.
- I wrote my address on the letter.
- I put a stamp on the letter.
- I went to the post office with my grandma and then we went to the grocery store.
