Woman: Is it my turn to have some now? Okay.

Boy: It's hot.

Woman: Oh. Ow! It's hot.

Boy: Okay.

Woman: [Smacking lips] Thank you. That is very good.

Boy: Here's some chocolate.

Woman: Oh, and you made some, too?

Boy: I made some chocolate.

Woman: You made chocolate?

Boy: Yeah.

Woman: So it's not hot.

Boy: No.

Woman: [Smacks lips] This is very good. Would you like some, Ada?

Ada: Mm. I love chocolate.

Woman: Thank you.

Boy: I made my sugar soup.

Ada: Sugar soup.

Woman: Sugar soup.

Ada: Do I need to blow on it?

Boy: Yeah.

Woman: [Laughs]

Boy: Barley soup.

Ada: Sugar, sugar barley soup? Mmm.
I can taste the sweetness from the sugar.

Boy: It's not hot.

Woman: And I'm seeing that you have different textures in your chocolate.

Boy: There's some chocolate and some carrots and some tomatoes.

Woman: Chocolate, carrots, and tomatoes. That is a fascinating mixture. Does your mom make that for you often?

Boy: Yeah.

Woman: Okay. Let's see. [Smacking lips] You know, it's really good together. I didn't think it was going to be. Thank you.

Boy: I like sugar.

Woman: I know you do.

Boy: Here's a little knife.

Ada: Oh, there's the knife.

Woman: And--and what is this?

Boy: This is knife to cut it.

Woman: Oh.

Ada: Okay, I got it here.

Woman: There. Would you like a piece?

Boy: Hm. It's yours.

Woman: It's all mine?

Boy: Yeah.

Woman: Would you like a taste, Arlo?

Arlo: Yeah. [Chomps]

Woman: [Laughs] How is it?

Arlo: Good.

Woman: Good? [Smacks lips] It is good.

Boy: Oh.

Woman: Thank you, for bringing it to me.
